Dear Parents and carers,

War Week – Success and Curriculum Survey

As Curriculum Leader at school, I would like to thank you ALL so very much for your fantastic support during War Week. I know that the children have been thoroughly enthused about their learning and I have been overwhelmed by all the wonderful stories about family members and photographs, medals, coins and other precious memorabilia. I think next year, we will study the topic over two weeks so that we also include Remembrance and Armistice Day and the two minute silence which we observed, as we do every year, on Monday. So please save all of those wonderful outfits from last week somewhere at home, ready for next November

I am writing to you straight after this event because I want to see that enthusiasm in school, at all times. You must agree with me that there were brilliant times when you were at school that you remember like it was yesterday. I myself, can still remember going to London in y6 and seeing the art works in The National Gallery and standing just outside 10 Downing Street and seeing how incredibly small it was. Along with this letter, you should find attached a curriculum survey. I would like you to seriously consider filling this in (maybe even with your children) so that your views about the ever-changing curriculum can be raised and added to overall findings so that [as soon as possible] we can have a dynamic, exciting and informative curriculum that enthuses the children at all times. We need more weeks like last week, all the time.

When you have filled in your questionnaire (which of course, you can do anonymously if you so wish) please return it to school via your child(ren) and we will take great pleasure in reading them and taking your carefully thought out views into consideration.

Next term, in January, we have our NEXT whole school focus and this time it will be an author study. More details about this to follow. I do hope that Santa Claus brings your children lovely books on the special day.

Thank you so much for your support with this.

Mr Jon Skupham
Curriculum Leader
